The turnover rate of carrying staff is calculated quarterly, based on the prior four quarters as follows:

1/1/2021 to 12/31/2021 - 60.3 percent
10/1/2020 to 9/30/2021 - 59.4 percent
7/1/2020 to 6/30/2021 - 58.2 percent
4/1/2020 to 3/31/2021 - 57.1 percent

Generally, turnover is cyclical where turnover leads to high caseload and high caseload leads to turnover with direct impact on clients and Alaskan families. Remaining staff absorb the caseloads of departing staff on top of the already high workloads, supervisors often absorb cases of departing staff as well, which leaves less available time to mentor and coach, and as a result family reunification is significantly delayed.

Staff exit surveys cite workload, stress, and lack of sufficient compensation are primary reasons for leaving the Office of Children's Services.

Retention bonuses are recommended to stabilize existing staff, entice new staff, and provide for a cash bonus at the completion of the first and second years of employment. The recommended bonus would be for the following job classes that are most impacted by secondary trauma related to child welfare work: Protective Services Specialist 2, Protective Services Specialist 3, Protective Services Specialist 4, Community Care Licensing Specialist 1, Community Care Licensing Specialist 2, and Social Services Associate. The retention bonus will reflect ten percent of the employee's annual salary, with 40 percent awarded at the end of year one and 60 percent at the end of year two. Employees receiving bonuses must be in good standing.

As part of their day-to-day work, child welfare staff interact with people who have experienced trauma. That direct and indirect exposure to trauma can negatively impact case workers and the services they deliver to Alaskans. Symptoms can echo post-traumatic stress disorder where workers may become hypervigilant, experience intrusive thoughts, and feel numb or detached. The trauma takes its toll on the division's workforce and is one contributor to high turnover. Critical incident stress debriefing provides supportive crisis intervention following powerful traumatic events. A Mental Health Clinician 3, range 21, located in Anchorage will build a critical incident debriefing program aimed to reduce distress and restore workforce performance. The goals of the debriefings are to mitigate the impact of traumatic incidents, facilitate a recovery process in workers who are distressed by disturbing events, and identify staff who might benefit from additional support services or referrals to professional care. This initiative would strengthen supervisors and managers ability to utilize reflective supervision as additional support to case workers at risk of burnout.

To ensure consistent frontline supervision needs are met in all Office of Children's Services locations, a new long-term non-permanent supervisory unit will ensure consistent supervision for new and tenured staff. Staff surveys indicate that consistent quality supervision is necessary for staff to navigate the caseload and competing priorities.
The Office of Children's Services will enter into a letter of agreement with the supervisor unit union to provide four on-call substitute supervisory positions and work with former supervisors to fill the gaps during permanent supervisor vacancies, annual leave, illness, and training.

Staff surveys indicate that the transition from classroom learning actual field work is difficult and cite the Office of Children's Services mentorship program as a great resource, however more transition support is needed. The Office of Children's Services faces an increasing challenge of placing youth in extremely high cost locations. These may consist of hospital stays that involve out-of-state assisted living homes or facilities for extremely complex youth. Many of these youth could remain in Alaska in traditional foster homes with appropriate supports in place. Foster care placements for complex youth is often disrupted if substantial financial support is not in place to address very unique high needs of youth in care. This funding allows for appropriate compensation for foster care providers caring for complex youth necessary to secure placements and keep children in Alaska whenever possible.

The Office of Children's Services is committed to supporting successful transition into adulthood and reducing financial barriers for youth ages 18-21 that are currently in legal custody or have exited foster care at age 18. These youth will be eligible for a capped annual amount for needs such as housing, household goods, employment support, transportation, utilities, financial management or other identified needs. Increased financial support for youth aging out of foster care will improve their long-term outcomes.
